

Journey To Love

By VIRGINIA NELSON

(C) 1959 by Virginia Nelson. Distributed by NEA, Denver, Colo.

He had no time for the sergeant. He was thinking of the sergeant's action. He had known for years.

"What do you mean?" he reported. "I'm not a criminal, Mr. Esenezer. Ward, I listen, do you want to make me lose my job?"

Alex groaned. "All right," he begged. "Listen, is that what you think this gorilla talk? Make him tell you who helped him to break into my boat tonight? Tell him you're connected with the man who ran into Beatrice Powers on the P.H. boat last night!"

"Her! The sergeant exclaimed. "And for heaven's sake, make up your mind what you are going to do with me. My girl's out there on that sculler alone, and if I don't go, she'll let me go back for her. What do you want, boy?"

"We can't hold you, Alex," the sergeant said. "Do you want to charge this guy with trespassing?"

"You're darned right I do," Alex said impatiently. "And if you let him out on ball, I'll never print your name again, so help me."

He haled a taxi to take him back to the yacht.

He called her name, as he climbed aboard. The Wikiki rocked gently, and the only sound was the lap of water and the scrape of the dinghy against the hull.

"Kathie," he said again, and the hollowness of his voice and the emptiness of the boat were telling him that he was alone.

He dashed below, pushing open the door without ceremony. The bulk where she had lain still bore the imprint of her body, but he saw that the cabin had been cleaned of her belongings.

Kathie was gone. "What is it?" his grandfather asked. "What you propose to do in this first place?"

"Apparently you don't realize what being Sam's wife can mean to you," the sergeant said. "I will have jewels and mining coals travel to the homes of your dreams, a car and the staff of servants."

"Do you think you would like me to keep my old house?" he asked.

But she did not tremble. "On the contrary, Sam, she can mean a great deal to you."

"Sam's eyes hardened to slits. "Search her luggage."

"At Sam's insistence, reluctantly, Kathie said bitterly. "It won't be the first time, and he flushed a deep dark red."

But he turned to obey his grandfather. Methodically he went through her cases, even rifling the things to see if they had been rifled out of form a hiding place.

"It isn't here," she said finally.

"Now, G. and I, there was a minute," Sam began. "Kathie, for the last time, will you marry me?"

Anger flushed in her blue eyes. "I wouldn't marry you if you were the last man on earth!"

Her anger helped fight off panic. And not only her anger, at the way Sam had deceived her. She was thinking of Uncle Job, for now she understood his harsh bitter nature. All his mature life he had lived under a cloud because of a crime this man had committed, while the murderer

Sam flushed more deeply at the memory.

News Briefs

LONDON (AP)—Averell Harriman, former Governor of New York and with Premier Nikita Khrushchev between the Kremlin and Moscow, has returned home. The world's most traveled man to Moscow is touring the Soviet Union.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI)—Lightning killed a shepherd and 470 sheep in Macedonia, a Southern Yugoslav province. The lightning struck the shepherd Sunday afternoon.

BERLIN (AP)—A spokesman for the East German Foreign Ministry said today that British atomic spy Klaus Fuchs will enter East Germany on Sept. 26.

Fuchs, 37, was sentenced 10 years and six months of hard labor for spying for the Soviets. He has been detained to release momentarily for good conduct, but British officials have declined to reveal his whereabouts.

ST. JOHNS, N.H. (AP)—Police today hunted two young seamen who dumped ship from the Soviet trawler "Neman." One report said $1,600 was missing from the ship.

VICTOR SELANOFF, second secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa, came to St. Johns to investigate the disappearance of the seamen after the Neman docked here Sunday.

The missing men were identified as Vilnis Butkunas and Adolph Tlioni, both 21.

The Neman acts as a factory ship for the Soviet trawler fleet on the Grand Banks. She put in here for provisions.

TOKYO (AP)—Red China warned the millions of Chinese living in the Canton area of Kwangtung province that raging flood crests on the swollen North and West rivers will strike there Wednesday.

The Communists already have said the floods in Kwangtung may sharp blow to Red Economic hopes this year.

open contempt in her voice. "I'm not going to search you, Kathie. Where is the dead?"

"You took the deed from the vault," Ward repeated slowly after a moment. "You didn't stay downstairs long enough to make a copy of it. Yet it was not in a copy of it. Yet it was left in bank. If you did not conceal it on your person, you mailed it. Alex Norris has the deed. Sam, we've got to act fast."

Kathie was staring at him with frightened eyes. "How do you know these things?" she asked. "How did you know I was on the Wikiki?"

"That was easy, the old man said contemptuously. "I merely asked myself where I would take you if I were Alex. You mailed the deed. Sam, we've got to find Alex Norris."

"What do you mean?" Sam had actually stammered.

Norris must be silenced," said the desperate old man.

PARKED AND WAITING

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A pair of killdeer has an entire factory excited about their four white eggs. The birds built their nest in the middle of the large parking lot of the Universal Match Corp.

Employees, worried about the cars roaring in and out of the lot, surrounded the nest with railroad ties.

Patterson Will Lay His Title on Line Tonight

MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson, world heavyweight champion, will fight the world's best streamliners at the NBC Saturday night games this evening. He is determined to win with the public's full acclaim, and if his manager, John Johansson, has his way, he will become Sweden's first world boxing champion. A slight cold, however, is keeping him from appearing in the ring.

The 24-year-old New Yorker making his last defense of the crown was a strong 24-1 favorite today to beat back the challenge of the undeterred 26-year-old European champion. In the 51 rounder before 35,000 at Yankee Stadium, Patterson timed 10-90 from the start. Outdoors in the weather, this is his main concern. The animals and they should not be held in ceremony, so a small town hotel is the logical venue of incisiveness. Clouding the afternoons and evenings, the postponement is necessary. Right will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. with the circuit telecast to the Americas coast-to-coast and ABC and the movies.

Patterson's issues to date between $100,000 and $100,000 in purses from 150,000 spectators.

The longest odds, the picks of most of the experts for Patterson and confidence in his unique training methods—he didn't unmask his "thunderbolt" right once—apparently haven't dismayed Ingemar Johansson.

"If I hit him with my right and I am confident I will, he will go down and out," said the optimistic Swede. Johansson speaks of his right hand as if it was not part of him, but a gun. Instead,

HOT ROLLS AND COLD CUTS
UNBEATABLE SUMMERTIME COMBINATION

Even when the temperature is 90 in the shade, most of us homemakers find that our families want something hot along with that standard meal of cold cuts and salad. And that's invariably true in the food stores. And do you know that you can make your very own yeast-risen rolls for supper in just a little over an hour? It sounds impossible doesn't it? It used to be that with this new quick recipe I tried, the secret active dry yeast and biscuit mix, combined with water. The mixing and kneading time has been cut down to nothing. And the best thing of all is that these home-made hot rolls give that short-cut cold meal great appeal especially when you make them rolls with a sharp cheese flavor.

CHEESE POCKET BOOKS

1 cup warm water (not hot—
105° to 115°) 2 1/2 cups biscuit mix
1 package active dry yeast 2 tablespoons soft butter
Cheddar cheese

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Mix in biscuit mix. Beat vigorously. Turn dough onto surface, well dusted with flour. Knead until smooth, about 20 times. Roll dough into circle about 1/4 inch thick. Cut into rounds with 2 1/2-inch biscuit cutter. Crease circles with dull edge of knife to one side of center. Brush with butter. Put small slice of Cheddar cheese on smaller half. Fold larger side over smaller side so edges just meet. Place on greased baking sheet. Cover. Let rise in warm place (85° F.) 45 minutes to 1 hour. Bake at 400° F. for 10 to 15 min.

Treasurer Has Interest, Debt Trouble

By SAM DAWSON
Business News Analyst.

NEW YORK (AP)—Low sellings are plaguing Washington again. The secretary of the Treasury keeps bumping his head on the federal debt ceiling, and now he's bumping it on the bond interest ceiling.

Congress keeps raising the debt limit temporarily or permanently or in combination so the Treasury can pay the bills that Congress has okayed.

Now Congress is in a quandary over what to do with the interest rate—let the secretary squirm under it, or just jack it up a bit, or remove it altogether?

In financial circles there's a growing belief that ceilings aren't realistic anyway. It's argued that they strain the secretary of the Treasury without deterring any of the things they're supposed to.

But a lot of congressmen won't buy this.

They say that putting a limit on how high the federal debt should go is a moral victory even if frequently it isn't an actual one.

And they say that interest rates should be kept low to aid home builders, small businessmen, installment plan buyers and farmers.

These congressmen look for other ways of doing this than just letting the nation's monetary and financial structure work itself out in a free market dominated by the supply of and demand for borrowed money and credit.

Some congressmen are urging the nation's money managers to increase the supply of money and credit.

This would hold down the interest rates, although in boom times the easier money gets usually the more the demand for credit grows, especially for speculative adventures. And usually as money gets cheaper, the higher the price of other things rises.

Money is tighter now than last year because more people want to borrow for business or personal or government reasons and because the money managers fear that easy credit would encourage a speculative boom and trigger a new inflationary spiral.

Some congressmen are urging the interest charges on long-term federal debt to rise, arguing that the Treasury should get the new cash it needs by borrowing in the short-term market. There's no ceiling on the interest it pays.

This Year
Poultry Prices
Stiffen a Bit

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Poultry prices stiffened this week, putting added pressure on the bargain-hunting food shoppers. Chickens and turkeys have been market leaders throughout the year, but so far this year, regular chickens have been the regulars. Poultry prices generally went up, rebounding 2 to 10 cents per pound from the lowest levels in 10 years. The higher prices have been attributed to a seasonal glut in chicken whose production falls off in those weather months.

Pork prices also were undergoing a seasonal increase, marking the fifth consecutive month that the increase has been greater than the decline.

Three large supplies of special buys hit the market this week, mostly to chicken stores.

A few places feature steaks and rib roasts, but these are in the minority. Rib roasts are charged up to 6 cents a pound in some areas.

All varieties of lettuce—iceberg, big Boston and romaine—are outstanding bargains, particularly where they're available from nearby fields. This is fortunate for those who like to beat the heat with a cool crisp salad.

Other best buys among vegetables include cabbage, yellow or green squash, spinach, parsley, carrots, yellow onions, radishes, beans, tomatoes, lettuce, escarole, beans, carrots, corn, and corn.

Southern and Western peaches again lead the list of outstanding buys among fresh fruits. Mangos, blueberries, pineapples, bananas, and limes also are available at low prices.

Fulbright Did Not Vote in Strauss Case

By GORDON BROWN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Of all the U.S. Senators, Arkansas' J. W. Fulbright (D) was the only one who did not vote or announce a position on confirmation of Lewis Strauss as secretary of commerce.

The omission was no accident. Fulbright just plain didn't want to vote on the matter.

His reasoning, as he has explained to friends, was this:

"He had no firm conviction on whether Strauss should or should not have been decisive since the wouldn't be right for him to cast what likely would be the decisive vote."

As it turned out, his vote would not have been decisive since the Senate rejected Strauss.

Fulbright made his feeling known to Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.). Johnson didn't insist that Fulbright vote—probably feeling that if he did, the Arkansans would be more likely to vote for confirmation than against.

Fulbright said he agreed with Strauss' position on the Dixon-Yates power plant fight, which was one of the big arguments Strauss' opponents used to fight him. But Fulbright said he disagreed with Strauss on other matters.

But the whole he had no strong feeling that Strauss should or should not be confirmed and didn't believe the issue should hinge on a man with such feelings—or lack of feelings.

Fulbright has demonstrated his willingness to face rough votes. He was the only Democrat to vote against former President Truman's nomination of George Allen to the RFC. More recently he was the only senator to make a fight against confirmation of Ogden Reid as ambassador to Israel. And he was the only senator voting against an appropriation the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy (D-Wis.) wanted for his Senate investigation committee.

Put Arkansas Rep. J. W. Trimble (D) down as one who has faith in the country's future.

Trimble spoke out in this respect at a meeting of the House Rules Committee.

At the meeting Chairman Wilbur Mills (D-Ark.) of the House Ways and Means committee asked that a bill to hike the national debt limit be sent to the floor for action.

Various committee members who could be classed as conservative sounded off on the gloomy prospects and the dire future of the country.

Trimble listened for a time than spoke up:

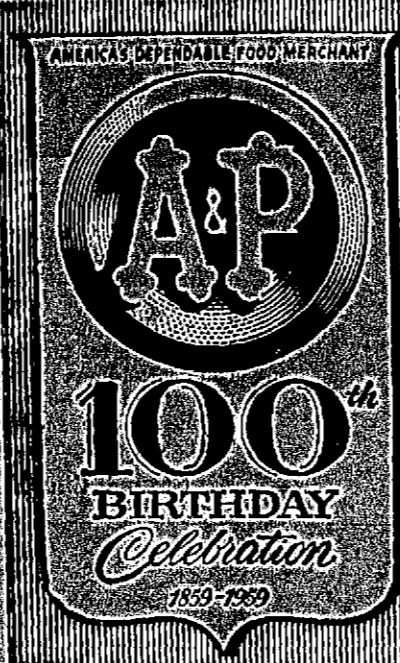

"The gloom in this room is so thick we could hardly wade through it. It reminds me of 50 years ago when I was a small boy. I was in a corn field with my father when a neighbor came by with a St. Louis newspaper that had a big headline that said National Debt Reaches Billion Dollars."

This neighbor said the country had gone to hell and that this lad, meaning me, would never have a chance in the world.

"Now I was right worried about that for several days. But 50 years and three wars later this country is still going strong."

"And I only wish I was a young boy again and could take advantage of the opportunities that lie ahead. I've got confidence in this country and I get a little tired of the gloom and doom predictions."

Trimble said later he probably shouldn't have popped off, but "I just couldn't help it."
